

Peter Willers announced today that he will be standing for election to the House of Keys as a Liberal Vannin candidate for Onchan.

Peter moved to the Isle of Man in 1986 and lives in Baldrine with his wife, Julie. Two of his children live on the Island with four of his grandchildren and one great grandchild. A UK barrister, Peter worked in the legal, commercial and property business in England and the Isle of Man, giving him extensive experience that he knows will contribute to the benefit all Island residents.

He is standing on the premise of freedom and justice and fairness for all; he believes that the Government and Civil Service are currently not fit for purpose. Further details will be in his manifesto and he will be visiting Onchan residents in the coming weeks to introduce himself and listen to their views.

Peter comments that “The Government have a great sales line – ‘Freedom to Flourish’ – but it does not exist in practice. It must be the job of the next Government to make that ‘Freedom’ a reality and, with the Onchan voters’ help, I intend to make that happen.”
